

UCF Pre-Health Transfer Student Panel

Gabriel Bailey

Major: Sport & Exercise Science

Transferred to UCF from: Valencia College

Best advice for a Pre-Health Transfer student at UCF:

"Do everything with excellence. Never be afraid to ask questions. In every opportunity remain steadfast in passion to learn and grow."

Kelsey Geraghty

Major: Health Sciences – Pre-Clinical

Transferred to UCF from: Valencia College

Best advice for a Pre-Health Transfer student at UCF:

"Evenly distribute your difficult courses throughout the remainder of your college career. Speak with advisors, faculty, and most importantly other UCF students and develop a tentative schedule of potential courses to take each semester. Easing into difficult upper level classes is important to keep a competitive GPA, even if this means adding an additional summer semester to your schedule."

Jennifer Marte

Major: Biomedical Sciences

Transferred to UCF from: Seminole State College

Best advice for a Pre-Health Transfer student at UCF:

"Always take advantage of all the different resources offered, especially those for Pre-Health students. Second, join a club or organization on campus where you can spend time with people who share the same goal as you and can learn from one another. Lastly, never compare or try to compete with others; you are unique and will excel in your chosen profession by being you and only you!"

Sara Sims

Major: Biomedical Sciences

Transferred to UCF from: Valencia College

Best advice for a Pre-Health Transfer student at UCF:

"Make a master plan according to all the things you need to get done and desire to do. Do the best you can and DO NOT COMPARE YOURSELF TO OTHERS or you might lose your sanity. If you need help, seek it out."

Tanner Tyer

Major: Health Sciences – Pre-Clinical

Transferred to UCF from: Florida State College of Jacksonville

Best advice for a Pre-Health Transfer student at UCF:

"Take advantage of the many resources UCF has to offer, and to surround yourself with like-minded, motivated individuals. Also, re-evaluate your study habits during your first semester at UCF because of the rigor of classes at the university level."
